

To whom it may concern,

Westgate Technology Corporation is a consulting company that provides custom software and product development solutions.

We retained DOMINION to build our website from scratch. We needed all our copy and graphics assembled into a compelling and informative website. The design had to be easy to navigate and compatible with mobile, tablet and desktop devices. The project also needed to be completed in a tight timeframe and within a fixed budget.

DOMINION delivered on all aspects. The new website presents Westgate Technology Corp's value proposition clearly and differentiates us from our competitors. And the design reflects our professionalism and reinforces our core values.

We are incredibly proud of our new website – and incredibly pleased with DOMINION's work. Whether you want to refresh an existing website or create something new, I wholeheartedly recommend DOMINION for any website development project.

Very best,
